Why do we celebrate Mother's Day?

Mother's Day was originally a day for Christians to visit their 'mother church' during the holy month of Lent. Workers would be given the day off to return home and worship with their loved ones. Young domestic servants would pick wild flowers on their way home to place in the church or to give to their mothers. In modern times, Mother's Day has become an occasion for children to show their love and affection for their mums, while the religious connotations have been lost.
